REFUSED TO TAKE ACTION.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Bath county met Saturday afternoon pursuant to a call of Chairman John T. Kimbrough. The chairman called the committee to order and stated the object of the meeting to be to request all Democratic candidates at the primary election and the candidates' friends to pledge themselves not to use money or other things of value, especially intoxicating liquor for the purpose of influencing voters at the primary election. A resolution embodying the sense of this request was voted down and the meeting adjourned. In a few minutes however, petitions were in circulation and being numerous signed pledging the signers to vote for no candidate who used money, intoxicating liquors, etc., to influence voters in the August primary election.

The pledge signed by every candidate for a county office, is as follows:—

We, the undersigned candidates for office in Bath county, do agree and promise that we will not, directly or indirectly, or through others give, loan or put into the hands of any person any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, money, property or thing of value whatever for the purpose of buying, procuring or influencing any person to vote for us or any one else at said election. And should we or any one of us violate this agreement, or should any one do so for us, or in our interest, with our consent or without our opposition, we pledge ourselves to withdraw from any race in which we may be candidates.

It is further agreed that each signer hereto will report any violation of this agreement, to whomsoever committed, to the Chairman of the Democratic Committee of Bath county within ten days from the time such violation shall come into his possession.

It is further agreed that each signer of this paper shall publish the same in the Owingsville Outlook for 48 hours after the publication of the same and shall not
